While traveling back to Tennessee last Sunday, we got caught in a massive traffic jam on Interstate 90 east of Cleveland, Ohio. A wreck happened out in front of us in a construction zone and traffic was backed up for miles. We were stopped for about 3 hours.

Fortunately, I had my guitar with me for an event in Bowling Green, Kentucky Monday night on our way home. It was hot – but I played for about an hour and met some great folks while we were all waiting for the road to clear. I sure hope to run into all of you again – but not in a traffic jam!
